NEW MATERIAL ON DECK FOR NDOT

THE FUTURE?—For a view of how transport trailers of the future may look, a trip to Alamo may be in order. Trailer decks are made of hardwood from Malaysia, which doesn't hold up well to the heat and dryness of southern Nevada. Ernie Hinojosa, facilities supervisor, learned about a new product blended from 100% recycled tire rubber and plastic costing only about half of the cost of hardwood. But the material is impervious to water, will not crack or splinter, and is not affected by ultraviolet radiation. The synthetic is also expected to last years instead of months for wooden decks. If the new transport bed works on the trailer in Alamo, it will be used on more vehicles. Fifteen DOT's around the country already use the recycled product, as well as the Air Force, Army and Navy Sea Bees.
